

Training Design Coaching

It's time for some honesty! Are your training courses:

- Relevant to employee needs/wants?
- Goal-specific?
- Timely?
- Interesting and fun?
- Popular?
- EFFECTIVE?
- Fun to facilitate?

If you've had to say "no" to any of the above, you're short-changing yourself, the people you're training, and your company. This dynamic course takes you through the steps and the skills you need to prepare WOW! sessions that are fun, effective and valuable for you and your employees. Designed as a follow-up session to our Interactive Training Techniques course/coaching, this session also can be taken as a stand alone course.

Sample Coaching Session:

- What elements are necessary in training design
- How to plan contents and activities
- Mind mapping – the creative process
- Translating ideas into materials
- How to estimate timing when preparing a class
- How to develop a facilitator outline, guide and checklist

Participants complete a section of an actual training program – giving them a way to put seminar skills and information to immediate use. This session is a must for in-house training professionals who want to spice up their existing training content and keep employees motivated, excited and, most importantly, awake!
