

Not So Basic Training

Core Competencies for Supervisors

Is this you?

- You went to promote someone and they turned it down. Your people are watching their boss drown and they're saying no thanks.
- You promoted your best worker, handed them a team, and basically walked away. Now they're struggling and you're not sure why.

Any of those land? Then keep reading.

Every supervisor who's in over their head is quietly costing you people. You just don't get the invoice. This session is a lot cheaper than replacing the three good employees they're about to run off. Let's get it on the calendar.

What they'll leave knowing:

- What the job really is, and what it's not
- How to go from buddy to boss without losing the room
- How to coach somebody instead of just telling them what to do
- How to give feedback that changes something
- How to set expectations so nobody can say "you never told me"
- What actually gets people to care, and no, it's not pizza
- How to document a problem so it doesn't come back to bite you

Run this for: owners, HR, and anyone who just handed someone a team and doesn't want to watch them sink.
